QUAIL AND DUCK

HUNTING PARTY GONE 5 DAYS, TRAVELS 496 MILES, BAGS LIMIT OF FLYING GAME

H. L. Miller, E. T. Allen and Robert C. Plume returned from Big Bear with the limit of ducks for each of them. They were gone for five days and did quite a bit of traveling in that time, going first to Mecca, which they made headquarters while they hunted in the cotton fields for quail and along the shores of the Salton Sea for duck. Enough of the former fell before their shooting irons to provide several feasts but the ducks were all gone, not a feather being seen. So not to be deprived of the sport they decided to go to Big Bear. They arrived on Thursday and devoted all of the following day to duck hunting around Baldwin Lake, under the expert guidance of Chuck Edwards, who knows the country thoroughly. He was formerly a resident of Eagle Rock and was well known to Glendale people. Now he is and has been for several years, a guide to hunting parties Ducks were found in abundance.

The party left Glendale Tuesday morning, traveled in all 496 miles, got their fill of quail and duck, then arrived at home Saturday night, feeling that they had put in full time during the five days they were gone.

Traffic Law Violations

Among the 21 cases up before the City Recorder yesterday for violation of the traffic laws, was one with such peculiar features that consideration of it was postponed for further investigation. A young Los Angeles girl driving a big car with six girl companions, was speeding north on Central avenue more than 40 miles an hour when overtaken by the traffic officer. She first tried to bribe the latter with sweet smiles and then with money, but was cited to appear in court today. Then her uncle phoned to the judge that she was speeding away from two men in another machine who tried to flirt with her. The traffic officer said this was untrue, so the case will come up for special hearing later in the week. One case disposed of was that of Mary Miles Minter, for traveling at 46 miles an hour along Central avenue. She setlled her fine through the Auto Club.

Real Estate Firm Moves

Hal Davenport and John Strother moved their real estate office Monday from 1247 South Brand to the new building at 219 South Brand, just finished by Borthick and Daniels. This building was sold yesterday by the two last named, to Mr. Strother and Miss Blanche L. Davenport, and they have before them for consideration a proposition to lease the entire building, 217 and 219 S. Brand, for three years. If they accept it, the real estate firm will seek a new location. Mr. Davenport reports that business is about normal, he having closed the following deals during the past week: A lot in the Stepper Tract, -1100; a lot on East Park Ave., $1350; an eight-room house at southeast corner Acacia and Central avenues; a seven-room house and two lots at 1028 South Glendale Ave.; a five-room house on Florence Place and a new brick building at 217 South Brand Blvd.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

REV. CRIST IN SERMON LAYS STRESS ON FORGETTING AS WELL AS REMEMBERING

Sunday's services were attended by large audiences at the First Methodist church. In the morning Dr. Crist preached a timely sermon on "Rebuilding the Christian Home." The evening service was decidedly a young people's meeting. The Epworth League attended almost in a body and great enthusiasm was manifested throughout. The pastor preached on "Forgetting and Remembering," from Phil. 3:13, 14. He said in part:

"The ability to forget is of as great value as the ability to remember. Some things should be forever forgotten. Injuries received from others, whether real or fancied, should be eradicated from the memory. To nurse a wrong by constantly rehearsing it, is to increase its dire effect upon oneself and at the same time to impose upon his friends.

"Injuries grow more unendurable and in a strange way multiply them-

LIGHT ON LEAGUE

AMERICAN LEGION POST ARRANGES DEBATE ON THIS GREAT ISSUE

It is the object of the American Legion, all over the nation, to support all worthy movements toward better citizenship, especially such as serve to enlighten the foreign peoples who flock in such numbers to our shores. Many, if not most, of these have the vaguest ideas as to what the American government really stands for. Without enlightenment they may become a great menace to our free institutions and to that great democracy our boys laid down their lives to preserve to the world. In view of these circumstances the local Post of the American Legion has arranged for a debate on the League of Nations between men of state-wide reputation who will discuss this great question from both standpoints and all angles, in order that those who hear these champions may go to the polls fully enlightened on this important issue. The American Legion as an order is absolutely non-partisan but its members, of course, hold their individual opinions on this as well as other great questions, and they thought it only fair to have both sides presented at this meeting, which will be held on Friday night, October 29th, 8 o'clock, in the High School auditorium.

The people of Glendale and surrounding community are cordially invited to be present. The meeting is free to all.

Ten Thousand More

The Evening News is informed that at the close of the Sunday morning service at the Presbyterian church, H. L. Finlay, chairman of the Finance Committee for the Building Campaign, announced that during the week $10,000 had been added in gifts to the original $50,000 of the Sabbath before. These thank offering gifts are but the advance guard of the real Thanksgiving campaign which will be November 21st to 28th. "The enthusiasm and interest increases daily and the congregation," said our informant, "and friends feel that the Lord is definitely leading in the plan to build an edifice suitable for the needs of the present day and looking forward to the future if the Lord tarries."

A threatening blaze southwest of Glendale seemingly creeping up the slopes of Griffith Park yesterday looked quite alarming for a time but volunteer fire fighters from several film companies in and near Universal City subdued the flames before any houses were destroyed.

YOUTHFUL HIKERS

TWO BOYS WITH KNAPSACKS ON THEIR BACKS START FOR ST. LOUIS

Two boys dressed for hiking and with packs on their backs appeared at the home of Geo. Herald, 118 West Windsor Road, yesterday, and asked Mrs. Herald about how to get a train for St. Louis. She questioned them and soon came to the conclusion that they were runaways, so informed police headquarters and the little fellows were sent for to appear there. When questioned closely they finally admitted that they lived in Los Angeles and were running away. Both had come from St. Louis, one a year ago and the other early in the summer. The elder, Kenneth Holdsbock, aged 13, lives at 872 Lucile avenue, Los Angeles, and the younger, Westleyn Vaughn, 10 years old, at 1933 Childs avenue. The latter said his parents were divorced and that his father brought him out here from St. Louis in June. He wanted to go back there to see his mother, so he induced the other boy, who had come out to this coast from the same city with his parents, to go back there with him. So they packed their knapsacks and started, intending to hike all the way if necessary. They were detained over night by the police, given a good breakfast and then taken to their homes by one of the officers in a city machine.

Return From Vacations

J. W. Stauffacher, city treasurer, and A. J. Van Wie, clerk of Public Works Department, were on duty again yesterday morning, after a vacation of two weeks, and H. A. Harrison, accountant, began his at the same time.

PLANS MADE FOR MAC SWINEY FUNERAL

BODY OF LORD MAYOR OF CORK TO LIE IN STATE ST. GEORGE'S CATHEDRAL

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Impressive funeral honors will be accorded Terrence Mac Swiney, who began life as a clerk and died in a spectacular manner for Ireland.

The Home Office promised today there will be no interference with plans of Irish leaders who announced MacSwiney's body will lie in state in St. George's Cathedral, to be carried later in formal procession to entrain for the journey to an Irish grave.

Officials said the only restriction on the funeral service will be that no Sinn Fein firing squad will be permitted to officiate at the grave.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A "vengeance expedition" of eight Sinn Feiners en route to England to attempt reprisals for the death of Lord Mayor MacSwiney was apprehended at Kingstown, Ireland, the Irish office announced today.

During MacSwiney's hunger strike it was reported Premier Lloyd George would be marked for assassination if the Lord Mayor died. The eight men, described as "desperate characters" were seized by soldiers as they were about to board a boat for England.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

MOTHERS' CONGRESS

FIRST DISTRICT IS TO HAVE ALL-DAY MEETING IN ROOSEVELT HALL

Mrs. John Robert White says that the women of Glendale should not overlook the all-day conference of the First District of California Congress of Mothers which is to be held Thursday, October 28th, in Roosevelt Hall, Walker Theatre building, between 7th and 8th streets on Grand avenue, Los Angeles. No Federation or Association President can afford to miss the Presidents' Council to be held at 10 o'clock, says Mrs. White, and all mothers should be interested in the discussion from 3 to 4, when Nellie Green Clark, dean of girls in the Pasadena High School, will talk on Recreation for High School Students.

The meeting will be held in Judge Miller's court room and all real estate dealers are cordially invited to attend.

FORMER PASTOR

REV. J. W. UTTER SPEAKS TO OLD FRIENDS TWICE AT CENTRAL CHRISTIAN

Rev. J. W. Utter, for five years pastor of Central Christian church, preached to his old congregation Sunday morning and evening. His morning subject was Paul's glorification of the Christ. He said he had noticed in reading Paul's epistles, that no matter on what subject he started to write, as soon as he had mentioned the Christ he seemed to forget all else but the majesty and power of the Savior. The speaker cited several examples of this trait in Paul, quoting from several of the epistles.

At the evening service Rev. Utter did not exactly preach but told stories of Africa and the wonderful missionary work done there in the past 50 years. He said he had three mighty good reasons for being interested in African missions—a beloved daughter, a son-in-law and a granddaughter. While the work of Livingston, Dr. Dye, Ray Eldred and others always appealed strongly to him he never felt a strong personal interest in the cause until his own flesh and blood was connected with it. Rev. Utter told of the founding of the work in Monieke and the final defeat of the witch doctors, who held the poor ignorant people in the thrall of superstitious fear, and stated that a Christian church of 1500 members, with Sunday School and Christian Endeavor is there now and constantly growing. At the close of both services, old friends gathered about Rev. Utter, who was the founder of the congregation and gave him warm greetings.

A beautiful anthem was rendered by the choir at the morning service as a special number and in the evening Misses Grace and Elizabeth Utter sang a lovely duet.

S. L. Gillan and family have moved from 203 West Maple to Milwaukee, Wis.

FILLMORE NIGHT

ELKS' LODGE 1289 TAKES IN 38 NEW MEMBERS, 28 FROM FILLMORE

Between 500 and 600 Elks were present at the meeting of 1289 last night and it was perhaps the largest attendance yet at a regular session. One hundred eighteen members and prospective members came in a special train from Fillmore. They were met at the S. P. station by local Elks with autos enough to convey them to the lodge room, and they were taken back to the station in the same way, after the meeting was over. This Fillmore delegation was headed by C. W. Hawthorne.

The officers of 99, Los Angeles, were present by special invitation and they put on the work of initiating the 38 candidates, 18 of them from Fillmore, in most impressive style. This was one of the largest classes ever taken in during one evening and a special dispensation had to be secured.

After the lodge business had all been transacted an open meeting was held and the Hawaiian Trio, together with local talent, gave a most entertaining musical program. The wants of the inner man were not overlooked, either, a most appetizing luncheon being served. One Glendale Elk had the curiosity to count the autos parked in the neighborhood of the Elks' Club House and he found there were 170.

Wedding Supper

J. A. Sayers and wife, who were married Saturday evening, were given a wedding supper after the ceremony at the home of W. S. Gamble and wife, at which there were present to greet the new-made man and wife Mrs. A. Gage, and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Oswald of Burbank; Langley Meredith, Jerry Parker, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gamble and Miss Marian Gamble. The bride, who was Mrs. H. C. Langford, is the mother of Mrs. Gamble. Mr. and Mrs. Sayers are spending a short honeymoon at Santa Monica.

Browns Sell Home

Dr. Harry V. Brown and wife have sold their home at 337 North Central avenue to a retired banker from Northern Iowa, a Mr. Cleopleas, and will give possession in 30 days. They will build a new home in the same neighborhood. Mr. Cleopleas and wife, their son, who is attending U. C., Southern Branch, and their daughter, who is a music teacher, have been in Southern California for some time, but did not hurry in choosing a place to live, preferring to look around first.

Funeral of Mrs. Morey

The funeral of Mrs. Malissa V. Morey, who died Sunday at the home of her niece, Mrs. J. O. Corliss, will be held at the L. G. Scovern Company parlors instead of the Little Church of the Flowers, tomorrow, 2 p. m., as was previously announced, the church being engaged previously for that hour. Friends of the family will please take notice.

Mrs. Jennie R. Weir passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cook, of 333 Vine street, shortly after midnight. Funeral arrangements await the arrival of relatives from Montreal, Canada. The deceased was sixty-eight years old. Remains are at the parlors of the L. G. Scovern Undertaking Company.

A Ghost's Thoughts

In the October 2d issue of Collier's Weekly" there is a story by H. C. Witwer, a noted magazine writer, whose "death" was featured in the newspapers last August. In telling "what a ghost thinks about" Mr. Witwer makes the following comment on life insurance:

"As a phantom, however, I derived my greatest satisfaction from the knowledge that I had when alive carried all the insurance on my life and income that I could stand and reaching that point had taken some more. I am no insurance agent and, to be frank, thought the average expert at the gift of selling insurance a singular pest until the first few minutes after my fancied demise. Then I realized what regular fellows they actually are, devoting their time, patience and ability to the thankless job of inducing us to secure the comfort of those we may leave behind. I had never been pennywise or otherwise thrifty as a mortal and I shudder to think of the financial state I would have left my trusting family in—these days when a hundred dollars is a garage mechanic's idea of a tightwad tip—had I not in one coherent moment out of the last six hectic years arranged for a sizable lump sum to be given my wife at my death and a modest income to be paid her monthly thereafter.

"One has to 'die' as I did to realize how comforting the above knowledge is to a newly defunct head of a family. Formerly I damned those insurance agents who had mentally and physically exhausted themselves trying to get me to do my duty as the head of a house, to the lowest depths of Gehenna, particularly on the days when I had to scrimp and pinch to meet the premiums. But I know that in the future I will look forward eagerly to those dates when I am permitted the satisfaction of making my family's comfort after my death a certainty and not a gamble!"

PRACTICAL PLAN

ELIMINATION OF WAR FROM WORLD SIMPLE PROBLEM, SAYS MR. GUIDINGER

Oct. 25, 1920.

Mr. Herbert Hoover,
New York City.
Dear Sir:

Your article in the Los Angeles Times October 13th, "Hoover's League Program," has interested me to the extent that I am impelled to write you a word or two regarding the subject.

It is impossible for any right-thinking man, who has been alive to the happenings of the past five years, to forget the frightful cataclysm; nor is it possible for him to live his life without giving deep thought to every scheme proposed by competent leaders to end such carnage. Wherefore, I would most earnestly favor the League program of either political party were it not for the fact that I am thoroughly convinced neither "a" League nor "the" League or any League can possibly accomplish the purpose intended. Moreover, according to published statements on the subject, neither you nor any other thoroughly informed person is convinced that the League will, as a matter of fact, eliminate a great war in the future; that proponents of the League, no less than the "bitter enders," look upon the scheme as nothing more nor less than an experiment. And the scheme holds the attention of all kinds and conditions of people simply because they look upon it as a supremely grand experiment. They do not stop to consider what the result of that supremely grand experiment may be in event of its failure; at least, if any of our responsible leaders have discussed that feature, the Associated Press has been derelict in publishing it.

As to my conviction that any League to end war must end in a great war: This was not arrived at by studying the published theories of our sundry public leaders, but is the result of knowledge gained by specific personal experience; not a peculiar personal experience, but such as any person may have if he wishes to become convinced of the only program by which war can and eventually will be eliminated from the world. My purpose in writing this letter is to do what I may to hasten the coming of that happy period in human events. Furthermore, all theorists to the contrary notwithstanding, it is exceedingly easy for anyone to take the course of action I refer to, provided only that he is entirely willing to pay the price demanded in exchange for that knowledge.

Now, it is not at all necessary for me to tell you that it is within the knowledge of all men of experience, whether in the building of automobiles, the propagating of better plants or more productive animals, or whatever his work may be, the nearer a man comes to perfect obedience of the natural law governing his peculiar calling the more successful he is in that vocation. In other words, we live in a natural world and each item in it is governed by the law which the Creator gave it.

Now then, to the point: Inasmuch as man is a natural creation, obviously there is a natural law by which he is governed, whether he will or no; and it is not within the realm of possibility for humanity to eliminate war unless we set ourselves earnestly, rationally and whole-heartedly at the task of getting a correct knowledge of that law; for war is one result of disobedience of the law—a penalty imposed by the Creator. There are at present upwards of ten score educational and social organizations promulgating various theoretical teachings of that law; each one having a different idea of it because none of its students, speaking broadly, are willing to get an accurate knowledge of the law in the only way that it can be had. Let me put it by analogy thus: A man may diligently study all the literature on the subject of swimming, but unless he actually gets into water and learns the art of swimming by practicing it he cannot possibly get a correct knowledge of that art. Likewise, we may read all the literature extant on the natural law by which the Creator governs humanity, but we cannot possibly verily know the law unless we do actually live the truth as prescribed specifically, concisely, simply and in complete detail by the only competent teacher, Jesus the Christ The Prince of Peace.

As to the price which the Master specifically and positively says must be paid by anyone who would be His disciple, you will find it clearly stated in Luke 14: 25 to 33; and at various places in His gospel we can find good and sufficient reasons why that price must be paid for correct knowledge of the truth. The only excuse our Christian people give for firmly refusing to pay the price is that it is not practical to do so under present world conditions or conditions obtaining in the past; or that, in fact, it would be immoral to do so, since it would result in a state of chaos according to their theories. I claim, and can prove, that these sincere folk are laboring under a misapprehension in making such assertions; in support of which I point to the fact that there are millions of people living the truth in the world today, though not consciously aware of that fact themselves as they are not informed of the matter, viz., the little children of every community. In other words, according to the Master's teaching, little children naturally live the truth; and it is only by virtue of the false experience they receive through precept and example of parents and teachers that they are led through that "wide gate" into the "broad way" which leads to all things evil in the world, carnage between nations being only one phase of these evils. Wherefore, our problem is not a question of changing human nature, as we are so glibly informed by theorists; but we are simply to take human nature as God gave it to us and be careful not to lead it astray by such false propaganda as has been and is being taught by well-intentioned, though ignorant leaders; that is, leaders who are ignorant of important fundamental things of their own nature.

So, Mr. Hoover, the elimination of war from the world is an exceedingly simple problem provided only that we begin at the right point, the cradle; and solve it in the like manner that we are today solving other problems which are governed by natural laws. To begin at life's maturity and endeavor to control humanity by artificial means is the really Utopian plan, while that of the Prince of Peace is the only practical plan. Is it not a rather peculiar fact that, with all our practical experience and the vast progress we have made by virtue of our obedience of natural laws in the physical realm of creation, we are so absolutely lacking of faith in the adequacy and efficiency of the law by which God rules humanity? This is precisely where our difficulties begin when we attempt, by artificial means, to eliminate the friction arising in the social, industrial or international contact between men, namely: We have not "Faith as a grain of mustard seed," i. e., a living faith in the adequacy and efficacy of natural law.

Inasmuch as you are a Civil Engineer and well informed on matters in general, I hardly need ask, Do you get me?

Sincerely yours,
JOS. GUIDINGER.

On the West Coast

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—While Democrats would not listen to the suggestion, that seemed to be the greater number of western political observers today favored the prediction of a Republican year west of the Rocky Mountains. California, Oregon and Washington, these dopesters figured, will be found in the Harding column on November 2. Nevada and Arizona probably will be solidly for Cox. Montana was counted as close but probably for Harding, and Idaho was expected to follow the lead of Senator Borah into the Harding camp. Two months ago California would have been classed as doubtful, many declared, but recent utterances of Senator Hiram Johnson, and an intensive campaign are believed to have swung the state in line for the Republican leader, despite its peculiar performance of four years ago. Not only is the Pacific coast expected to lean towards the Republican Presidential ticket but the indications favor the sending of a Republican delegation from the far west to both the house and senate. Democratic senatorial incumbents in three states are being forced into spirited contests for their seats. In California Senator James D. Phelan, Democrat, and Samuel Shortridge, Republican, are engaged in a nip and tuck race for Phelan's seat. The result appeared a bit doubtful with the advantage, if any, with Shortridge. Arizona, normally Democratic, is the scene of another stiff fight for the senatorship with Ralph Cameron, Republican, battling Senator Marc Smith, Democratic members from Arizona, for twenty-two years. In Oregon Senator George Chamberlain, Democrat, is engaged in the hardest battle of his career for re-election against Robert N. Stanfield, Republican. Chamberlain, however, was figured as having a little the best of it, despite a heavy Republican registration. Washington is expected to send back to the senate Wesley L. Jones, Republican, by a big margin. In Montana and Idaho no senators are to be elected. Montana, however, is attracting attention owing to the strength which a combination of non-partisans and labor league leaders are claiming for their ticket for state legislative candidacies. Many expected to see them control the lower house of the Montana legislature.

SALEM, Ore.—Neil Hart, half-breed Indian doomed to hang in the state penitentiary here November 5 for the murder of Sheriff "Til" Taylor, has taken up religion since being lodged behind the bars. Hart says he finds solace and consolation in the visits of a clergyman who is permitted to call on him frequently. Officials assert Hart's attempts to appear unconcerned are pathetic and they expressed a fear he will collapse before his execution. The state of Oregon is trying to make Hart's last days as pleasant as possible. He is fed fried oysters and roast chicken and cakes and candies. He has flowers in his cell and is provided with cigars, cigarettes and reading matter. "I'm afraid we'll have to use drugs to give him courage to walk to the scaffold," said Deputy Warden Hawley. In a jail break last July in which Hart and several others gained liberty, Taylor, Pendleton's picturesque sheriff and idol of the entire state, was shot to death.

LOS ANGELES.—The Los Angeles county grand jury today was to resume its probe of the Coast League baseball gambling scandal. Among witnesses expected to testify today are President William H. McCarthy of the league and players not yet called before the inquisitors.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Pointing out that California will not reach the peak of development unless its natural resources are carefully fostered and utilized, the state railroad commission in its annual report, transmitted to Governor Stephens today, urges a survey of the state's water and power resources. The report recalls that California recently was "confronted with a situation which threatened the very core of its prosperity." "We are of the opinion that in no other way can the great resources of our state be developed or its full possibilities realized than through the conservation and proper distribution of water—its most valuable crop." Attention is called to the fact that statistics show less than half of the total area of arable lands susceptible of irrigation has an available water supply. "Any halt in the state's hydro-electic development," the commission informs the governor, will spell disaster. The commission says the state's paramount need is cheap power. "The water shortage," asserts the commission on this point, "was responsible for an enormous increase in oil consumption, the diminished supply demanding more steam-made electricity. So great was the oil consumption that a new record was established. It was estimated 6,000,000 barrels of oil will be used in 1920 as against an average consumption in normal years of about 5,000,000 barrels." Discussing the problem confronting the electric railway electric system of the state, the commission declares it is apparent the time is by no means here when cities and rural territories can dispense with electric railway facilities. The automobile stage, the jitney and the privately owned automobile are not a substitute for the street railway or the electric interurban railway, says the commission.

Failures Not Deterrent

A newspaper, probably without a design, placed the list of divorce suits filed in one day alongside the list of marriage licenses issued. The failures in matrimony numbered 11, while those who were taking steps to enter the relation which the others were seeking to dissolve totaled 29. That some had made a mistake did not discourage nearly three times as many from daring the experience. There are mismatings that probably cannot be guarded against. Lives are wrecked by unhappy marriages, but it is the failures that we hear most about. The happy marriages do not proclaim themselves through court records and they are vastly in the majority. It may be true that not all the unhappy ones go as far as to be a matter of public record, but the noise that some of those aired make compensates for those mismatings that are endured. The fault with marriage lies not in the institution but in the people who enter it. The wreck may be due to too great haste in entering it or to a mistake in judgment. Naturally where human judgment is the only guide there will be errors. That there are so few mistakes made is the wonder rather than that so many matings go awry.

But were the percentage of failures vastly greater marriages would continue as at present. Each couple is sure theirs is for all time and will not be wrecked. Life looks fair to them. That those who acknowledge one failure are not discouraged from trying again is often demonstrated, a few indulging in a considerable assortment, one after the other. Each individual must live his own life and he cannot know what the future holds for him until he experiences it. If ill-fortune befalls it is his fate, but this would be a sorry world did not optimism invite to dare where some have failed. If many were discouraged by those that go amiss many happy marriages would fail of realization. It is well that youth is endowed with hope.

EDUCATION OF WOMEN VOTERS

Leaders in the organizations devoted to the interests of women very wisely realize that the majority of women must be taught the principles of government if they are to be expected to use intelligently the franchise which this year is new to so many of them.

In addition to the work of women's clubs of various kinds, non-partisan leagues for instruction in political, civic and economic subjects have been formed, and the interest which so many women are taking in the work of the organizations promises much for the future.

It may be argued that it will be practically impossible to keep partisan feeling out of such an organization, but if the persons in charge of the work of instruction are tactful there is no reason why party issues should be injected in the study classes or lectures.

Women's clubs did much toward bringing national suffrage, and they have given large numbers of women a higher estimate of their own value to the community in which they live and to the state and nation which they may now serve in the capacity of voters.

There is really nothing very complicated about the duties of citizenship if these duties are kept free from the injection of politics. The primary rights and duties of citizenship may be understood readily, and women will be found just as keen as men to adapt themselves to instruction in subjects that pertain to the intelligent exercise of the franchise. Instruction in these matters should be continuous, and it should not depend on political campaigns.

Even men who have had the voting privilege for years should not feel that they would not be the gainers from instruction in the duties of citizenship. Every election shows that a considerable number of male voters have been disqualified because they did not understand the simplest rules for marking their ballots.

BRAVE MEN AND TRUE

Among the tiny items of the day's news there's one which is of enough importance to be reflected in the stock quotations. The marriage license business in New York City is picking up.

People seldom rush into matrimony when the future looks dark. One has to be reasonably prosperous and considerable of an optimist these days to undertake the support of a modern young woman in the style to which she wishes to become accustomed.

And yet more than 100,000 couples in one great city will take the chance this year. They are scarcely looking for any serious slump in the present prosperity, which is the most cheering part of the news. Until a considerable number of citizens begin to talk hard times and prepare for hard times there is no particular danger.

It's good that the people all over the nation are going ahead with the affairs of life in hopeful and optimistic spirit, and if a contract of marriage isn't a sure sign of optimism there isn't any. So long as people assume new responsibilities and hold true to the simple obligations of life there is nothing seriously the matter with the world in spite of irritating symptoms.

There has been a slight increase in real estate sales the past week.

K. Tregnor has moved into 435 Patterson avenue, W. I. Terry to 312 East Dryden and Dr. Stow to 247 N. Kenwood.

Judge H. M. Miller and wife and son Ray, accompanied by Miss Jennie Smith, of Santa Monica, motored to Chatsworth Sunday.

Mrs. L. G. Parker arrived Saturday night from Cleveland, Ohio, where she had been spending the summer, and has her old rooms in the California apartments.

The funeral of Mrs. Abbie Morgan, which will be held in the Pulliam & Kiefer Undertaking Co. parlors tomorrow, 10 a. m., is to be strictly private and no flowers are to be sent.

Mr. and Mrs. James Howarth of 343 North Isabel left last week for a trip to New York City by way of Chicago, Indianapolis and Washington, D. C. They expect to be gone a month.

Victor W. Prosser is continuing his building operations in Glendale, his latest effort in that line being a four-room residence at 356 Ivy, to cost $2500, for which a permit was taken out yesterday.

John Fanset and wife arrived at home Saturday from a two weeks' outing at Warner's, not far from San Diego. Mr. Fanset said he did some hunting but did not find much game.

Harry W. Chase of 325 West Lomita, who has been suffering for some time from the after-effects of flu, was taken to the Glendale Sanitarium a few days ago. He is getting along very satisfactorily.

J. Mac MacMillan and wife, who have lived at 350 Hawthorne for several years, expect to move this week into the beautiful new six-room home at 350 West Broadway, which Mr. MacMillan has had built under his own supervision.

D. N. Woods and daughter Neal of Courtland, Kansas, are visiting at the home of B. M. Emerson, 441 Salem. They spent the summer with relatives in Seattle, Wash. They have come to the Southland to spend the winter. Mr. Woods is an uncle of Mr. Emerson.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Merritt E. Brown of 235 North Jackson street, Glendale, on Tuesday morning, Oct. 26, 1920, a son, who has been named Merritt Robinson Brown. Mrs. Brown is a daughter of Mrs. Leon Hagood, 216 North Orange, who is very proud of this second grandchild.

New houses in which electric light meters are being installed, preparatory to occupancy are the following: E. Grell, 981 North Pacific Ave.; H. J. Horn, 107½ East Chestnut; Melvin Allen, 600 Vine; John Jones, Hermosita Drive; W. H. Ward, 110 North Belmont; C. E. Shaw, 529 Alexander; R. L. Bush, El Rito Ave.

Some recent moves in Glendale are those of E. E. Hill from 118 South Adams to 504 Riverdale, F. W. Parr from 704 East Windsor Road to 450 West Broadway, B. Barnes from 139 North Belmont to 1224 South San Fernando Road, E. C. Rogers from 504 Riverdale Drive to 1308 South Glendale avenue.

Contractors still complain that building is greatly hindered by the lack of good carpenters, the kind that can do any kind of work from sawing a board accurately to doing the finest of finishing work. There has been no change in wages paid though extra inducements are offered at times for extra good men.

The Philathea Class of the Presbyterian church held its regular monthly business meeting and social at the home of Mrs. Jas. Cooper, 119 North Cedar street, last evening. The house was decorated throughout in Hallowe'en colors. Refreshments consisting of yellow and white ice-cream and yellow cake with black frosting were served. About twenty-five members were present.

Venice, one of the fastest growing cities on the coast, as revealed by the 1920 census, is boasting of the fact that for the year ending September 30th the building permits totaled $590,150 and they were 404 in number. Glendale, with less than 3000 greater population according to the census, had nearly this amount in permits in one month and for the year ending September 30th, nearly two million dollars. It is such comparisons as these that show Glendale to be the wonder city of the world in rapid building of homes.

Postcards were received yesterday by several members of Rev. Clifford A. Cole's congregation, stating that the great annual convention of Christian churches of the United States and Canada, which he was attending in St. Louis, was nearing its close and was accomplishing great things. He said he was to preach in the Compton Heights Christian church of St. Louis on Sunday the 24th, that being the home coming day of the church.

selves as we recount them. The devil is always trying to get us to think that our 'hurts' far exceed those of any other.

"Forget the defeats of the past. One is tremendously handicapped in undertaking any new task if he is constantly reverting to the defeats of the past. The intense struggle of life demands faith not fear. Success comes as a natural result to those who refuse to think of impossibilities.

"Forget past sins, if they have been forgiven. There is absolutely no virtue in remembering that which God has promised to forget. He says, 'I will remember them no more forever.'

"The text suggests," said Dr. Crist, "the real spirit in which to meet life. We are to forget the past and 'stretch toward the prize.' One can almost tell a winner by the way he starts."

Rev. Crist proceeded to indicate some of the prizes of life, showing how necessary it is that one should, with eagerness and enthusiasm, enter upon the tasks before him, but, said he, "With all the physical world before us, with the possibility of triumph and the invitation to seek after the good things of earth, the greatest prizes are those offered in the Spiritual realm.

"What a challenge," said the preacher, "comes to all of us as we stretch out toward Spiritual vereties. The great task of life is Spiritual improvement. One should cultivate the devout mind, and escape the tragic results that come to the critic and the scorner."

The Missing Link

Inquisitiveness, the hunger to know things, the desire to unearth something, whether it be the ruins of an ancient city or only a bit of scandal, is a strong factor in life. Even among the lower animals this instinct is active and often leads to their destruction. A wall-eyed pike perceives something bright and shiny flashing through the water. Unable to restrain his curiosity, he darts in pursuit, and before he can check his incredible speed he has collided with a three-pronged hook so sharp and fearfully made that he cannot shake it off. "'Twas an artificial bait," mutters Mr. Pike, lying in the bottom of the boat of the owner of the bait. "I was a fool."

But adventures in curiosity do not always end thus. Applied by man, this instinct has led to some of our greatest discoveries, and, when combined with other characteristics, it has given us some of our greatest inventions. And so, though we may smile at Polar expeditions and deep-sea divings and efforts to communicate with Mars, we ought not to put a damper on such endeavors. Who can tell what fateful secrets may be revealed to us at sea bottom?

In line with this instinct to unearth something is the expedition recently fitted out to search the wilds of Asia for that much over-rated, elusive progenitor of man, the Missing Link. Persons of a practical turn of mind may scoff at this effort to extend the bounds of knowledge. Someone with more humor than love of scientific research may ask: "Why go to Asia?" the while a knowing wink accompanying the question implies that a more fruitful search could be instituted nearer home.

But however the great majority of us, unmoved by deep scientific research, may regard this venture, it will not do to say that for the man of science it is not of great importance. True, it is hard to understand just how the finding of two molars and the left thigh bone and the shoulder blade of man's prehistoric ancestor will help us in the selection of a president or a representative; such a discovery may not give aid and comfort to the new woman voter confronted by the task of casting wisely her maiden ballot.

Dame science, however, is not concerned with these practical considerations. Her aim is to extend the boundaries of knowledge. Every little bit helps and makes just a little bit more. To her a fossilized skull 200,000 years old is more interesting and important than a senate committee's report on a revenue bill to raise billions. And prehaps it is.

The first woman to hold the office of police chief in the United States is Mrs. E. S. McGinn, of San Mateo, Calif.

The Issue of Vivisection

The following article in the Argonaut was called to our attention by Ezra Parker:

In the matter of the anti-vivisection measure now before the voters of the state there is instruction in what the baseball world styles the "line-up." On the affirmative side we find a very considerable number of humanely-inspired persons, mostly women, who view the issue sentimentally and, we suspect, without serious study of all its phases. In the name of mercy they appeal for a law to prevent experimental practice upon living organisms in the name of science. They insist that there is no value in pathological or physiological experiments on living animals, and that nothing that could not otherwise be learned has ever been derived from vivisection. They allege that gross cruelties are practiced in laboratories of the state in the name of science and that these acts have a debasing effect alike upon experimenters and upon students under their instruction.

On the other side of the issue we find the highest authority in medical science. The medical fraternity is practically unanimous in opposition to the measure. It insists that the notable advance in modern sanitation and modern medicine and physiology has rested upon animal experimentation. It cites that without the knowledge gained through vivisection it would not have been possible to make the progress illustrated in modern practice against the scourges of smallpox, typhus, typhoid, cholera, diphtheria, plague, yellow fever, malaria, and other diseases not so prevalent and fatal. Modern surgical operations, it is declared, and the protection of mothers from child-bed fever would be impossible but for experiments on animals. It is further argued that the measure is unnecessary special legislation urged upon prejudice and misinformation. It is pointed out that the existing laws of California are sufficient to control any abuse. It is denied that cruelty to animals is practiced in the laboratories of the state. It is alleged that anaesthetics are always used upon animals in the laboratories in exactly the same way that they are used by surgeons in the operating room. These statements are made upon the highest authority.

Scientific experts, representing the medical profession, make appeal for veto of this anti-vivisection measure. They insist that it relates to the welfare of the state in the broadest sense. Much, they declare, has been learned of the causes of disease and disease processes, but much remains to be learned. If there is to be understanding and control of many forms of heart and kidney diseases, diabetes, cancer, tuberculosis, and nervous diseases there must be continued experimentation. If we are to have trained physicians and surgeons there must be permission to observe processes and conditions that can only be developed by laboratory instruction in connection with living animals.

The weight of authority is clearly on the side of those who oppose this measure. It is apparently a case in which a mistaken but kindly sentiment stands against scientific judgment and the dictates of common sense.

Rural Problem Difficult

A comparison of the census of 1920 with that of 1910 shows that approximately 11,000,000 persons have changed from the rural districts to homes in cities and towns. This change has been especially marked during the last five years, in which time many persons have been attracted to the industrial centers by large wages.

It is shown that in 10 years more than 22,500 farms have been abandoned in New York state alone. Figures are not available for all sections of the United States, but the total must be alarming. There are a number of reasons for this, and to the persons who leave the farm these reasons are most obvious.

Rural mail delivery, the telephone and improved roads, permitting the use of larger numbers of automobiles, have contributed toward making life in the country more desirable, but it appears that these conveniences are not enough to stop the drift from the country to the towns.

Statistics compiled by the department of agriculture show that the average farmer receives about $500 a year for his work—less than $10 a week, which is about the sum a good mechanic earns in a day. A farmer with a team can earn more money in a city in a day than he can earn on the farm in a week, and he will get it easier.

It will not do any good to rail at the farmers because they are leaving the farms for the prospects of earning more money in the city, where they can share in the advantages that are found in the city—better schools, better churches, entertainments and other things which the farmer can appreciate as much as the city-bred man. The situation is serious, but it will not be made better by appeals to duty or ranting. If the nation wants food, it is necessary that its production be made reasonably profitable.

HOW FORECASTS OF WEATHER ARE MADE

Few persons realize the science displayed in the making out of the weather report. The prophet himself must be a man of many qualifications. He must know how to read the automatic barometers .He must be an able mathematician in order to figure out his computations. He must be a draftsman so that he can outline the territorial map with its network of lines and circles which show high and low pressures, and all the signs of the time.

First the sky is studied by the naked eye, with notations made on its clearness or cloudiness, type of clouds and directions from which they float. Later the electrical barometers are read. The highest readings are taken by maximum and minimum thermometers exposed in shuttered shelters.

To measure wind velocity an instrument called the anemometer is used. This self-registers so as to make a continuous automatic record of the wind, showing the rate and time of occurrence of all winds.

A thermograph writes the temperature unceasingly on clock time. Perhaps the most important piece of scientific machinery in the outfit is the meteorograph. Three things are recorded on this scientific invention, the action of the wind, rain and sunshine. Numerous instruments are needed to test the moisture and the rainfall. There is the rain weighing gauge, which weighs snow also. Even the moisture is measured by the hydrograph, and for fear the weather man might miss some tiny ray a sunshine recorder has been devised.

A network of telegraph circuits connects the various weather bureaus and distributing stations. Within two hours after the observations are taken the forecasts are telegraphed from the forecast centers. After the map has been traced it is stereotyped, printed and distributed.

Weather forecasts reach nearly 90,000 addresses every day by mail and are available to more than 5,500,000 telephone subscribers. —Motor Magazine.

The Wonder State

California is the wonder state of the 1920 census. She has shown a gain of 44.1 per cent in population, the largest state increase yet reported. The last decade has been one of diminishing growth in all sections. Even California's rate of increase shows a falling off compared with the boom of 60.1 between 1900 and 1910. But she has done vastly better than any of her neighbors. Oregon's percentage of increase between 1900 and 1910 was 62.7. Washington's was 120.4. But in the last decade Oregon's gain was only 16.4 per cent and Washington only 18.8 per cent. Colorado's rate declined from 60.1 per cent to 17.6 per cent.

Most states heard from so far have shown gains of less than 20 per cent. Connecticut alone—with 23.8—stands with California in the plus 20 per cent class.

Maine, whose count was only 3.5 per cent against 6.9 in the preceding decade. California's abnormal growth has carried her in ranking ahead of Georgia and Indiana. It will assure her another marked increase in political power.

With a population in 1910 of 2,337,540 California was entitled to 11 seats in the house of representatives—a gain of three. Now her population is 3,426,536. If the ratio of representation is increased from 211,877, as at present, to 230,000, she will be entitled to fifteen seats. On a 230,000 ratio her gain in representation will probably equal or exceed that of any other state, with the possible exception of Michigan. She will have more than doubled her vote in the house since 1890.

California's expansion is just beginning. She is the Empire state of the far west and seems destined to live up in every day to that proud title.

The first Protestant place of worship in Paris was opened in 1555.

In Great Britain women are in the majority to the extent of two million.

What has become of the old-fashioned grocer who prided himself on selling a little cheaper than his competitor?

THE DOWNWARD SHOOT OF PRICES

December wheat at $1.90 a bushel looks like 70 cents down from the top—already. December corn at 85 cents looks like 75 cents down—already. Cotton around 20 cents looks like 20 cents down—already.

A crop of 800,000,000 or 900,000,000 bushels of wheat down 70 cents a bushel, or down some $600,000,000 in all, does not mean exactly so much less direct cost in American bread. American consumers don't eat all our wheat. Some 600,000,000 bushels suffice to supply their needs.

A crop of 12,000,000 bales of cotton down $100 a bale, or $1,200,000,000 in all, does not mean exactly so much less direct cost in American textiles; for American consumers do not use all our cotton. A crop of some three billion bushels of corn down 75 cents a bushel, or some two and a quarter billions of dollars in all, does mean so much less direct cost in American food because pretty much all our corn goes into our beef, mutton, pork, our poultry and even our eggs, butter, milk and cheese.

A cut of approximately two and a quarter billions of dollars in the corn for home consumption, or perhaps three-quarters of a billion of dollars in the cotton for home consumption and of nearly half a billion of dollars in the wheat for home consumption—this total looks like a cut of nearly three and a half billions of dollars in direct fundamental food costs. A cut of three and a half billions of dollars in only these three staples! Here, in merely these three items, is a potential living cost relief at the rate of some $35 a head for every man, woman and child in the United States—more than $200 a year for the average American family.

Furthermore, a cut of $600,000,000 in the market value of our wheat, of $1,200,000,000 in the market value of our cotton and of $2,200,000,000 in the market value of our corn means four billions of dollars of purchasing power sliding out from under the general market. And there is where the business is done of bringing about general deflation and of letting down general prices.

As any particular purchasing power begins to weaken the general market tends to sag. As general purchasing power slumps the bottom drops out of the general market. Those great staples are the lever and the fulcrum both, they are the lifting force and the sustaining power under the very base of all the markets.

It is the downward slide that is ahead of the American consumer.—New York Herald.

IMPERATIVE FOR SAFETY

Just as the work of Americanizing those of foreign birth who have been here for some time and have not become assimilated is undertaken, we are overwhelmed by another influx of immigrants. We have only begun to recognize that a great task confronts us in seeking to convert to American ideas those ignorant of our language and our institutions who may have been long among us, yet are as foreign in thought, perhaps, as when they came. We now know we took in immigrants much more rapidly than we could absorb them. We also are aware that we have received many that should have been turned back.

Because we were so generous in admitting almost all who came the privilege has been greatly abused. There is no united thought in this country of putting up the bars perpetually against those who may seek to better their condition and come here with the purpose of catching the spirit of our form of government and living as loyal Americans, but at this time particularly there should be great caution in passing on the applicants.

It is not at all astonishing that great numbers should seek to get out of Europe at this time. The disordered state of affairs there is an incentive for leaving. There should be work there for all, but the belief that America offers a greater opportunity is potent to inspire a desire now as well as in days before the war. To avoid the unsettled conditions abroad is as likely to be felt in the breasts of those we do not want as in those who would make good citizens. This makes it all the more imperative that all applicants should be carefully scanned. Great enough is the task of instructing in American principles those who are imbued with a desire to learn our ways.

The immigration question is again a live one, in fact of more importance than ever before, for in considering it the alien agitator and anarchist is a greater factor than ever before. The man who believes in bombs and murder as a means to solution of problems has a backing in propagating his ideas that he never had before. An entire nation has run amuck and its leaders wish the world to do likewise. Its missionaries come as immigrants. To guard against their admission is more than essential. It is imperative for our safety.

THE NEW EDUCATION

Nowhere has more progress been made in the right direction than in the understanding of the true objects of education, and the revision of study courses.

In the old days training the "mental faculties" was supposed to be the aim of education, and studies involving prolonged mental gymnastics absorbed the student's time, such as abstruse arithmetical problems requiring long calculations; the "dead" languages, and endless rules of English grammar; meticulous memorizing of historical dates and abstract geographical facts and points. The application of the things he studied to his daily life received scant consideration, his bodily development none.

Today the object of education is held to be the fitting of the child to cope with the ordinary facts of life. He learns arithmetic by means of simple thrift, marketing and business transactions. His language he masters by studying and reproducing the finest literature. History springs to life in vital epochal with few dates. He studies native products and manufactures the world around, and markets them by devious land and water routes at home and abroad and so acquires a working knowledge of geography. Manual training and domestic science prepare the way to the immediate industries. Politics and government become plain in his own town problems. The proper care and handling of his body he learns by athletics, physical exercises and health drills. Instead of trying to carry reams of abstract knowledge in his head he is taught to make books and libraries reveal their lore when needed.

If there were a better general understanding of the fin purpose and scope of modern education, parents and business men would co-operate with educators with a new enthusiasm.—Long Beach Telegram.

Regarding Judge Reeve

In the absence of the party attacked—or as the lawyers say, ex parte—and with the hope and belief that no immediate defense will be made, the so called "Movement for Better Judges" is sending speakers about the county addressing club and other meetings on behalf of four certain candidates for the Superior Bench and against four of the present incumbents. One incident of this kind occurred in Glendale a short time ago, wherein the speaker's bitter personalities were ruled out of order and stopped, with the suggestion that he return later when the other side might be represented and the facts gone into fairly and thoroughly. The speaker has not returned to date, the suggestion of fair play has been ignored and instead the city has been flooded with a printed circular going to further extremes of vituperation. The difficulty of combatting this sort of attack is, of course, apparent to all, but, knowing personally how unjust and cruel this system of persecution is, I am forced to make some reply to the charges against Judge Reeve of the Juvenile Court. It is said that he smokes cigarettes and that his first election was due to the fact that his name is similar to that of Judge Rives. As to the cigarette charge, before we disqualify a judge or a candidate on that ground let us be sure that none of the other incumbents or candidates advocated by this "movement" is open to the same silly criticism. As to the alleged similarity of names, Judge Reeve was first elected six years ago; he has occupied the most talked-about department of the Superior Court since May 1, 1915, and it is a serious reflection upon the intelligence of the voters to assume that he would be mistaken for any other person whomsoever. If such a point seriously can be advanced regarding Judge Reeve, what can be said of the election of Judge John M. York, whose father Judge Waldo M. York, preceded him on the Superior Bench; Judge Charles Wellborn, whose father, Judge Olin Wellborn, occupied the Federal Bench so many years, and indeed the candidacy of one of the nominees, supported by this "movement," whose surname is exactly the same as that of one of the present incumbents?

Surely, at this election, after five years in the Juvenile Court, Judge Reeve will not be mistaken for anyone else, and as to the manner in which he has conducted his court, I will later quote Hon. Curtis D. Wilbur, who himself conducted the Juvenile Department of the Superior Court for several years and is now a Justice of the highest Court in this State.

Charges are made that Judge Reeve is responsible for certain alleged conditions at Juvenile Hall and for certain alleged statements of "officers in the juvenile department," and something called "the hair brush case" is referred to without explanation. It is claimed that Judge Reeve swears. I have a signed statement from Judge Reeve denying the use by him of any profanity whatever and denying any knowledge even of what is meant by "the hair brush case," which statement, by the way, was furnished the "movement" before its circular had been very widely distributed. Judge Reeve has no control of Juvenile Hall, the same being under the Probation Committee appointed by and responsible only to the County Board of Supervisors, and likewise Judge Reeve has no control over the statements of other people connected with Juvenile Hall, the Probation Committee or the Juvenile Department. The present secretary of this so-called "Movement," Mrs. Cora D. Lewis, was formerly a member of this Probation Committee, and has full knowledge of the truth of the statements last above made.

The circular referred to emphasizes a claim that the official reporter of the Juvenile Department is paid a larger amount per annum by the county than the reporters of other departments of the Superior Court. It does not appear wherein Judge Reeve is involved in this—nor does it appear that anything is wrong—and the circular fails to state the fact that Judge Reeve has nothing to do with the earnings of this reporter whose demands are duly audited by the County Auditor and paid by the County Treasurer after being so audited.

In support of one charge of this circular it is stated that after a certain decision had been rendered by Judge Reeve a Mrs. Blerstein leaped from one of the windows of his courtroom and killed herself, and that recently Judge Reeve had petitioned the Supervisors to bar these windows. As a matter of fact no decision whatever had been rendered by Judge Reeve in the Blerstein case prior to this unfortunate occurrence. And first, three years ago, and again eighteen months ago, Judge Reeve requested that the windows be barred because of ths fact that insane cases were heard in his department. Mention is made in the circular of cases involving young girls. No girls' cases have been heard by Judge Reeve since November, 1915. A short paragraph of the circular refers to the case of ten boys, arrested for stealing strawberries as a "first offense." These boys' ages ranged between 16 and 18 years, some of them had been in court before, and their peculations amounted to something over $1000. In this particular case Judge Reeve followed the recommendation of a Probation officer, no longer connected with the Juvenile Court but now actively engaged in the "movement" distributing the above mentional circular. In the five years of Judge Reeve's incumbency of the Juvenile Court there have not been half a dozen appeals from his decisions.

In a letter to Judge Reeve written August 21, 1920, by Justice Wilbur, the latter says:

"At the beginning of your term at the solicitation of myself and some of the other judges deeply interested in the success of the Juvenile Court, you somewhat reluctantly agreed to take the assignment. . . . While I personally had nothing to do with the work after you took charge of it, I nevertheless, maintained my interest in it, and have informed myself with reference to the method in which you have discharged your duties. . . . In the Juvenile Court you have dealt with between six and eight thousand children. It would be impossible to deal with so many cases without making mistakes and being subjected to just criticism. . . . I was very much interested in the establishment of a woman Referee for the girls' cases and formulated the legislation to secure that result. The law was passed shortly after you took the office. You made an excellent selection of a woman Referee under civil service and established the work on such a fine basis that it has attracted attention all over the country. . . . My own judgment is that Los Angeles has the best Juvenile Court department in the United States and that you have met the extremely difficult questions involved in its administration with commendable success. It should not be forgotten that the appointive power in the Probation department, and to a certain extent the Supervisory power over the Probation office, has been placed with the Board of Supervisors under civic service, and the same is true with relation to the officials of the detention home. There are two difficulties in connection with the work of the Juvenile Court which are not generally appreciated: First, most of the work is done without the intervention of attorneys, the burden usually assumed . . . . by attorneys being thrown . . . . in a large measure upon the judge. It results from this that attorneys generally are not familiar with the work and may not give to the judge the measure of support accorded to judges with whose work they are more familiar. Second: The very necessity of conducting the proceedings with a view to the welfare of the child makes it desirable to avoid publicity in the routine work of the Juvenile Court, the result being that publicity is usually given to those cases in which either the court is acting under unusually difficult conditions, or there is a desire on the part of someone to criticize the conduct of the Juvenile Court. . . . You have conducted the Juvenile Court without the publicity usually given to such work, and may in consequence suffer from the character of publicity given in such difficult cases. . . . You took over the entire matter of the handling of the insane. . . . . In this difficult work, as I understand, you have handled between five and six thousand cases. At least 50 per cent of these cases coming before you have been treated in ths psychopathic hospital or in Rest Haven and have been released without committment to the asylum, thus saving the state the enormous expense of their continued maintenance, not to mention the more important effect upon the individual. This new plan so effectively administered by you, has attracted the attention of the entire United States. . . . In making these statements I am not only relying upon my own personal observations, but upon the word of those who have been intimately acquainted with your work both in the Juvenile and Insane departments and have no hesitation in saying that in my judgment, your work entitles you to re-election by an overwhelming vote. . . ."

The foregoing is submitted for consideration of the voters in justice to a man who is doing a great work and who should not be hampered by the utterances of disgruntled ex-attaches or disappointed aspirants to judicial position. He is a good judge and this so called "movement" will not produce a better one.

California Eggs in N. Y.

It will be somewhat of a surprise to many of our readers to learn that eggs from the ranches of Southern California are now being shipped to New York City and, not alone this fact but the still more remarkable fact that they are bringing the top of the market prices, notwithstanding the long trip. The market quotations on the day this item was written being from 85 cents per dozen to $1.08 per dozen.

The reason for this premium of from 15 to 20 cents per dozen over eggs from other sections of the country is owing to the extreme care in grading, packing and shipping the product. As a matter of fact this extreme care with which Southern California eggs are handled begins with the unborn chick; the "kind" and "quality" of feed that is given to the mother hen that she may produce eggs that are not only "hatchable" but eggs that are large and of even size from which strong, vigorous chicks can be hatched, and not alone these facts but eggs from Southern California must be uniformly "good keepers."

To insure this latter quality certain feeds have been found to contain the ingredients best suited to these purposes and in the Co-operative Poultry Associations of Southern California the members are carefully and thoroughly instructed both in what to feed their hens and what not to feed their hens to make them lay eggs that can be shipped all the way to New York City, more than 3500 miles away, and still be in such prime condition upon arrival as to command a premium of 15 to 20 cents per dozen above the eggs from the middle and western states in the same market.

It has been found by experiment, with thorough tests made in many of the larger flocks in Southern California, that the excessive use of cotton seed oil cake meal in the makeup of so-called "egg mashes" is very detrimental to the quality of the egg both as a market egg and as a hatching egg.

As one organization that specializes in the production of eggs of the very highest class—the Poultrymen's Co-operative Milling Association of Los Angeles—with its hundreds and hundreds of members, has, for a number of years used no cotton seed meal in any of the products turned out for poultrymen.

Recently the Poultry Producers of Southern California, Inc., issued a letter to each of its members warning them against the use of this form of protein.

About the last thing of which a man will complain is the cost of catering to his appetite.
